

Outreach Coordinator, *First Existentialist Congregation of Atlanta We are an experiment as a philosophically based spiritual community. We believe in individual freedom, personal responsibility, and the importance of community. We believe that each person must seek their own path and find their own truth. We may hold different beliefs yet we come together in community and treat one another with kindness and respect. We are located in Candler Park in the Old Stone Church Building and we are affiliated with the Unitarian Universalist Association (UUA).

Responsibilities

Contact like minded organizations: social activists, LGBTQ, neighborhood groups, art groups, veterans' organizations, universities, professional organizations, etc.

Focus on getting the word out (media, social media, etc. and other organizations' newsletters, online calendars, etc.)

Develop ways to increase visibility and growth of the congregation by presentations at community events, workshops, and in the media.

Convene special gatherings or educational opportunities in our building such as Food Drives, Blood Drives, and workshops.

Reach out to members and friends that haven't been around for a while. Develop programming that would be relevant to a younger population looking for a non-judgmental activist community.

Facilitate occasionally at Sunday Services (as a way for the Congregation to get to know you).

Speak occasionally at Sunday Services
